Calendar events

- Name, date and content are required. The content is plain text, shown when a visitor points at the event.
- All Day is on by default. Turn it off to give the event a start time, and an end time if it has one.
- Times are entered on a 24-hour clock and shown in the store's class time format (12- or 24-hour).
- The grid filters by name, date range, All Day or Has a Time, and content, sorts on every column, and exports to Excel.
- Delete asks Yes / No first.

Mass Duplicate

- The same repeat rule as class Mass Duplicate: every 1 to 99 days, weeks or months; weekly on any weekdays; monthly on dates or on weekdays of the month.
- Every series ends, after a number of events or on an end date.
- New dates fall after the event's own date, or from today on when that date has passed.
- Each copy keeps the name, All Day, times, content and color. All the copies are created together or not at all.
- Several events can share a day, so there is no clash check.

On the Class Calendar

- Events show on their date as a card with All Day or the time range and the name. Pointing at the card shows the content above it.
- An all-day event comes first in its day.

- Events show while the Category, Class Location and Class Name filters are all on All. Choosing a filter shows only the matching classes.
- In the list view, events are grouped under Calendar Events with When and Details.

Colors

- An event's Calendar Background Color, when set, replaces the widget's Event Background Color for that event.
- A class category's Calendar Background Color, when set, replaces it for the classes of that category.
- Empty means the widget's color. Hover still shows the widget's hover color, and a full class keeps the Full Class color.

Print

- Show Calendar Print, off by default, adds Print Calendar at the right end of the filter row.
- It prints the calendar as it is shown, month and filters, on a landscape page, without the rest of the website.

Also in this release

- The End date picker in the class Mass Duplicate dialogs (ICV-1448) opens again.
