Shipping options for your business

Indition Shipping helps your team set consistent checkout charges for home-delivery items. Choose the products or orders a rule covers, decide how to price shipping, and control when and where the rule applies.

Capability	Business use
Whole-order tiers	Set one shipping charge for the shipped items in an order, based on their value or quantity.
Category and SKU rules	Give selected product groups or individual products their own shipping policy.
Flat charges	Charge per item or per group of items, such as $10 for every five qualifying items.
Value and quantity tiers	Charge once for the qualifying group using the range it falls into.
Free shipping	Enter a zero shipping cost for a rule or qualifying tier.
Store and date controls	Apply a policy across all stores, selected stores, or a scheduled period.

Choose a policy with a clear purpose

A retailer can offer free shipping on larger orders, use a flat charge for selected accessories, or price a category by the number of items shipped. The amounts in this pack are examples for planning your own policy.

Online shopping and your catalog

Checkout calculates shipping for items selected for Home Delivery. Store Pickup, electronic delivery and in-store purchases do not contribute to the shipping-rule total. Product shipping charges provide the usual pricing for items not covered by an applicable rule.

Orders and shipment communication

Supported order workflows can record shipment tracking details and use configured shipment emails to tell customers what shipped. Your order and email setup determines the available workflow. Shipping Rules is where your team manages checkout charges.

How policies work together

An applicable whole-order tier sets the entire shipping charge. Otherwise, product rules and ordinary product charges are combined. Among matching whole-order rules the lowest charge applies; for overlapping product rules, the oldest matching rule covers each item.
